DESCRIPTION:

As people of color, finding ourselves in conversations about race and DEI in the workplace can come with a host of opportunities and challenges. This session aims to provide a space for reflection, support, and strategy-building as we name the burdens and power we carry within these conversations, and find strategies to identify our own conditions of engagement to help find balance between pushing conversations forward and protecting our own well-being. Limited to participants who identify as people of color.

TIME:

11:45am – 1:15pm on Tuesday, March 26th
